Film Institute participants, under the supervision and direction of the Film Institute Director, will participate in workshops and discussions aimed at preparing delegates to learn and begin engaging in the art of film advocacy. Students participating in this Institute will view student documentaries, be given instruction on how to develop a focal idea, create a storyboard, and use technology to create a high quality film. All participants are requested to conduct research on their potential film topic before coming to the conference. The focus of the research should be on the factual information needed to support the concept being presented in the documentary.

MUN-Directors or teachers who know the candidate well should include in their recommendation references to the candidates' academic performance, school and extra-curricular activities, background or experience in film, and provide a summary of why the candidate would make a good Film Institute delegate. Where there is more than one application per school, MUN-Directors are asked to rank order.

Note to Directors: Film Institute participants are required to pay the conference registration fee and will be invoiced as part of the school's MUN delegation.
